INTRODUCTION

Kiribati's handicrafts are deeply connected to its natural resources, emphasising sustainability and traditional knowledge. The materials used, such as pandanus leaves, coconut, sea shells, wood, and organic products, are generally sustainable when harvested responsibly.

Pandanus and Coconut:

These plants are essential to i-Kiribati culture and handicrafts. Sustainable harvesting ensures minimal environmental impact, but climate change, including saltwater intrusion, threatens pandanus growth. Proper processing of coconut materials is necessary to prevent pest infestations.

Sea Shells and Shark Teeth:

These materials have historical and cultural significance, but overharvesting can disrupt marine ecosystems. Sustainable collection practices and adherence to conservation regulations are crucial to protect biodiversity.

Wooden Articles:

Responsible forestry practices help prevent deforestation and habitat loss. Local producers are encouraged to source wood sustainably.

Soap and Organic Chemicals:

Products like coconut oil-based soap are eco-friendly, minimising chemical pollution when natural ingredients are used and coconut harvesting is done responsibly.

Kiribati has environmental regulations to protect its natural resources. Local producers and vendors must be aware of and comply with these laws to ensure the sustainability of their crafts. By maintaining sustainable practices, local producers in Kiribati can continue crafting traditional items while preserving their environment for future generations.

There may be times when tourists are hesitant to purchase a handcrafted souvenir from local producers, mainly over the fear that the item will be confiscated at their borders on arrival due to biosecurity or environmental concerns.

This guide aims to assist tourists and vendors to identify items of potential biosecurity and environmental concern to Australia and New Zealand. Using this guide, both vendors and buyers will be able to determine whether the handicraft items being sold or purchased are okay to take home and are not likely to be confiscated by authorities.

The images that appear in this guide are but a few examples of the diverse handicrafts available for sale. Along with the image there is a description of the item, materials used in manufacture and biosecurity/environmental comments.

BIOSECURITY

Countries maintain biosecurity measures to prevent the introduction and spread of pests and diseases that could devastate their agricultural industries and environments. These measures can take many forms, including treatment, to render them safe. Some products however, present such a high risk of spreading pests and diseases that they are not allowed entry into a given country, and this may vary between countries.

Please note the biosecurity requirements in this guide are for non-commercial consignments (Australian quarantine requirements) or private consignments (New Zealand quarantine requirements) i.e. for tourists buying handicrafts. The requirements for commercial consignments in many cases are different to non-commercial or private consignments and may vary over time.

ENVIRONMENT

Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) is an international agreement between governments that aims to ensure that international trade in specimens of wild animals and plants does not threaten their survival. Some shells, bones and feathers from the region may be subject to CITES restrictions and have not been included in this guide.

PESTS IN HANDICRAFTS AND PREVENTATIVE TREATMENT METHODS

After manufacture and during storage, pests may lodge on or in handicraft items. The detection of live insects on handicrafts by biosecurity authorities when a tourist returns to Australia or New Zealand will result in either treatment, destruction or re-export of the item.

This outcome is not desirable as the tourist either loses or must pay for the treatment of the handicraft that they have purchased. Vendors and tourists can manage the occurrence of live insects being detected on handicrafts by applying simple preventative treatments, as outlined below.

PREVENTATIVE TREATMENT METHOD 1

Handicrafts, particularly woven items, should be shaken over a clean white surface (piece of paper or sheet) to dislodge any contaminating items such as soil, seeds and insects. The item can then be placed in a large plastic bag (e.g. garbage bag) and treated with a short spray of insecticide from a pressure pack (e.g. Mortein™ Insecticide) applied to kill any storage pests (see Figure 1). The bag should then be tied at the opening to prevent the insecticide from escaping and left for 24 hours before opening the bag and removing the handicrafts (see Figure 2).

Note it may be best to perform a trial to ensure the insecticide being used does not damage the item.

PREVENTATIVE TREATMENT METHOD 2

Handicrafts should be checked that they are free of borer holes or crevices that may harbor or hide insects, before they can be placed in a sealed plastic bag in a domestic or commercial freezer (usually operating at -18 degrees Celsius) for seven days to kill storage pests.

Note: it may be best to perform a trial to ensure freezing does not damage the item.

Figure 1 – Handicraft placed in a large plastic bag (e.g. garbage bag) and a short spray of insecticide from a pressure pack (e.g. Mortein™ Insecticide) is applied to kill any storage pests.

Figure 2 - The bag is tied at the opening to prevent the insecticide from escaping and left for 24 hours before opening the bag and removing the handicrafts.

05 BIOSECURITY COMMENTS

Each item has a biosecurity comments section which refers the user to appendices 1 and 2 at the rear of the book. These appendices provide specific biosecurity requirements for each item from Australian and New Zealand biosecurity websites. In most cases, the requirements are simply to declare the item, which may then be inspected and if pests are detected treatment may be required.

06 INSPECTION METHODS

Australia or New Zealand quarantine authorities will inspect most handicraft items to ensure they meet certain quarantine requirements. To ensure the handicraft item that you are selling is free from storage pests, you should perform an inspection using the same technique as that used by the quarantine authorities.

To perform the inspection, you will need a clean white surface (piece of paper or sheet) and adequate light to see the insects if they are present. Adequate light means either a light source from a fluorescent light or natural sunlight. If the lighting is inadequate, you will not see the insects. Your inspection is best performed prior to displaying the item rather than at the time of sale.

Wooden carvings – Using the light source, inspect for live insects, bark, seeds, soil, animal debris and other contamination. The wooden carving should be free of borer holes and crevices that may hide or conceal live insects or seeds. The presence of small holes and sawdust associated with the wood carving generally means live borers (wood boring insects) are present (see Figure 3). Bark, seeds, soil and other contamination must be removed before sale. If live insects are found or suspected due to the presence of sawdust, the item should be treated by one of the treatment methods listed.

INTERPRETATION OF SYMBOLS

Woven items such as mats, fans and baskets

- Holding the woven item 10 cm above the white surface, sharply tap with your hand or shake the item to dislodge any insects onto the white surface. If live insects are found, the item should be treated by one of the treatment methods listed.

Shells and feathers - Using the light source, inspect for live insects and other contamination. Feathers can be held above a white surface and sharply tapped to dislodge any insects. Feathers must be clean and free of skin and integument. Shells should not have any odour.

Figure 3 - Carving showing small holes and sawdust that generally means live borers (wood boring insects) are present. These items should not be sold because the presence of borer holes will make it difficult to inspect on arrival in Australia or New Zealand. As a result, these items will be held for further observation as the Quarantine Inspectors are not able to confirm if the item is free of live insects. Treatment may be required if live insects are found.

The following information is provided to assist the vendor interpret the symbols used within this guide. This information should be used in combination with the appendices to make an assessment of the suitability of handicraft component materials in terms of the quarantine requirements of Australia and New Zealand.

Item will be returned after inspection by Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry (Australia) / Ministry of Primary Industries (New Zealand) staff if it is found to not pose a pest or disease risk and meets the requirements specified in the appendices of this manual. If a risk is identified, you may have the option to pay for the item to be treated and returned to you; pay to have the item re-exported; or have the item destroyed by the Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry / Ministry of Primary Industries.

Item will be detained after inspection by Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry (Australia) / Ministry of Primary Industries (New Zealand) staff. Depending on the risk identified you may have the option to pay for the item to be treated and returned to you; pay to have the item re-exported; or have the item destroyed by the Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry / Ministry of Primary Industries.

APPENDIX 1 QUARANTINE REQUIREMENTS - AUSTRALIA

Handicraft	Australian Quarantine Requirement (non commercial)
Sea shells	1. Whole sea shells must be inspected to ensure freedom from contamination and/or infestation by extraneous materials. If contamination and/or infestation is found, the material will be treated by a Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry (DAFF) approved method, as applicable to the type of contamination, or re-exported or destroyed.
Wooden articles	2. Wooden articles will be subject to an inspection to verify that it is free from biosecurity risk material, such as live insects, bark, seeds, soil, animal debris and other contamination. If biosecurity risk materials are found on inspection, the article will be treated by a DAFF approved method, as applicable to the type of contamination, or re-exported or destroyed.
Pandanus and coconut weavings	3. Pandanus and coconut weavings will be subject to an inspection to verify that the fibre is thoroughly dried with a brittle feel. Articles must also be free of seeds, live insects, animal debris and other quarantine risk material. Weavings that are semi-dried and still pliable, even if they are no longer green, are subject to mandatory treatment by a DAFF approved method. If contamination and/or infestation is found, the material will be treated by a DAFF approved method, as applicable to the type of contamination, or re-exported or destroyed.
Coconut shell and fibre products	4. Coconut shell and coconut fibre products will be subject to an inspection to verify that they are free from coconut milk, coconut meat and free of live insects and other quarantine risk material. If contamination and/or infestation is found, the material will be treated by a DAFF approved method, as applicable to the type of contamination, or re-exported or destroyed.
Teeth	5. Teeth must be free of contamination and/or infestation by extraneous materials. If contamination and/or infestation is found, the material will be treated by a DAFF approved method, as applicable to the type of contamination, or re-exported or destroyed.
Soap	6. Soap is to be commercially manufactured and packaged and is for the personal use of the person wishing to import the item; OR the soap contains less than 20% by mass of material of animal origin. For these purposes, lanolin is not considered to be material of animal origin; AND/OR the cosmetic contains manufactured plant powders, extracts and plant oils.
Organic chemicals and substances - e.g. Coconut oil.	7. Organic chemicals and substances must be highly purified and/or highly processed substances. Documents and/or products are subject to inspection to confirm the description of the goods. It is the importer's responsibility to provide sufficient documentation (such as a declaration or certificates of analysis) to satisfy quarantine that the product is as stated. It is the importer's responsibility to satisfy quarantine officers of the origin of the product. If the importer is unable to do this, an Import Permit is required. Each consignment must be packed in clean, new packaging.

APPENDIX 2 QUARANTINE REQUIREMENTS - NEW ZEALAND

Handicraft	New Zealand Quarantine Requirement (private)
Sea shells	8. Each sea shell will be subject to an inspection. Sea shells must be free of adherent, extraneous organic material, pest infestation, and evidence of decay. Products that do not meet the requirements will be authorised for treatment, reshipment or destruction.
Wooden articles	9. Wooden articles will be inspected for evidence of pests, bark, or extraneous organic material (e.g. leaves, twigs, soil). Products that do not meet the requirements will be authorised for treatment, reshipment or destruction.
Pandanus and coconut weavings - other than mats)	10. Although these items generally do not require certification or inspection, it is important that all woven handicraft articles made from dried plant material are declared on arrival in New Zealand, which may warrant inspection. Ensure that the articles are clean and free from pests or other extraneous organic material.
Pandanus weavings (mats)	11. Although these items generally do not require certification or inspection, it is important that all woven handicraft articles made from dried plant material are declared on arrival in New Zealand, which may warrant inspection. Ensure that the articles are clean and free from pests or other extraneous organic material.
Coconut shell	12. No certification or inspection requirements. Tourists are encouraged to declare coconut items, however.
Soap	13. There are no certification or inspection requirements for soaps that have dried plant material embedded in them. However, soaps containing viable seeds will be authorised for treatment, reshipment, or destruction.
Organic chemicals and substances - e.g. Coconut oil.	14. Declare for inspection and assessment by MPI Inspector if the product has not been commercially processed. Products that do not meet the requirements will be authorised for treatment, reshipment or destruction.

A collection of Kiribati handicrafts is displayed against a light background. On the left, a large clear plastic bottle of refined natural coconut crude oil is prominent, with a label listing ingredients and volume (1 LITER / 34 fl. oz.). Next to it are several smaller bottles of 'KIRIBATI COCONUT COOKING OIL'. In the center, a dark blue spray bottle with a pump dispenser is visible, labeled 'Te Bwaabwaruaki'. To the right, there are several woven baskets made of natural fibers, some with intricate patterns. In the foreground, a small woven bag with a black and white checkered pattern and orange accents is visible. The overall scene represents traditional Kiribati products and crafts.
